MEMPHIS STATE UNIVERSITY

DR. THOMAS GLENN CARPENTER

The President

Dr. Thomas Glenn Carpenter, Memphis State's ninth president, was named to the position May 22, 1980 by the Board of Regents of the State University and Community College System.

Dr. Carpenter, 54, was born in Atlanta and educated in the public schools in Winston-Salem, N.C. He received his bachelor of science degree in business administration from Memphis State in 1949, his master's degree in economics from Baylor University in 1950 and his Ph.D. in economics from the University of Florida in 1963.

He has 23 years of professional experience serving four institutions of higher education. He began in 1957 at the University of Florida as instructor of economics and statistics and also served there as assistant director of housing.

From 1964 to 1965 he served as director of auxiliary services at Florida Atlantic University. Then in 1965 he went to the University of West Florida as business manager. During the next four and a half years there he served as dean for administration, vice president for administrative services and acting vice president for academic affairs.

In 1969 he became president of the University of North Florida and served 11 years in that capacity before accepting the MSU appointment.

He is married to the former Oneida Pruette of Memphis, also an MSU graduate. The couple has two children.

Dr. Carpenter says that the University "is a place where there's an opportunity to do good things and make a contribution . . . Memphis State is still a very young institution. My impression is that its potential isn't even close to being recognized."

The Past Presidents

The first president, Seymour A. Mynders, literally created the school that was to become Memphis State University.

Born in Knoxville, Tenn., Mr. Mynders earned his degree from the University of Tennessee in 1880 and thereupon dedicated his life to education. He became a teacher and later supervisor in the public school system—a system he thought lacking.

Long before being named to the presidency of the old West Tennessee State Normal School, Mr. Mynders and the man who would follow him in office, John Willard Brister, travelled the state of Tennessee in an effort to build support for a state law that would establish a system for educating teachers.

Attired in the hot wool suits and high button collars of the day, Mr. Mynders and Mr. Brister rode wagon and train from county to county, from school fair to school fair, calling for a system that would give teachers a chance to learn to teach—to become better educated.

Success came in 1909 when the Tennessee General Assembly passed the General Education Bill calling for a "normal school" in each of the state's three grand divisions.

In 1910, in an 80-acre cotton field two miles east of what was then the Memphis city limits, a shovel of dirt was turned and Memphis State University was launched.

West Tennessee State Normal School was a reality and Mr. Mynders was appointed president.

Hard as he had toiled for the education law, Mr. Mynders' work had just begun. He was responsible for the construction contracts to build the school, recruitment of a faculty and the forging of a curriculum. In 1912 the doors opened to some 200 young men and women who wanted to become school teachers.

The job, however, took its toll. A year after assuming the presidency, Mr. Mynders was dead, felled in 1913 by an ailing heart attributed by many to the hard work he had endured to found and launch West Tennessee State Normal School.

It was natural that he be followed by the man who had shared the task of establishing the school—John Willard Brister.

Mr. Brister, who earned his M.A. from Peabody College in 1893, had begun his college teaching career there in 1902. It was a profession he followed until 1911 when he was named state superintendent of education.

His tenure as president of West Tennessee State Normal School was not destined to be a steady one. In 1918, some five years after he became president, he departed the president's office. However, his affiliation with the school was not yet completed.

American soldiers were fighting and dying in the trenches of France during World War I and Mr. Brister joined the war effort as education secretary for the Young Men's Christian Association.

Meanwhile, Andrew A. Kincannon occupied the presidency. A Mississippian with a master's degree from National Normal University at Lebanon, Ohio, and an honorary LL.D. from the University of Arkansas, Mr. Kincannon was no stranger to college administration.

Before being appointed president of West Tennessee State Normal School to replace Mr. Brister, Mr. Kincannon had served as chancellor of the University of Mississippi.

The war over, Mr. Brister came home from France in 1919 and was named state high school inspector—a post he held until 1924 when the door of the president's office at West Tennessee State Normal School opened once again to him.

Mr. Brister was to see a major change a year later. In 1925 the school was upgraded to a four-year, degree offering institution and its name was changed to West Tennessee State Teachers' College.

Mr. Brister, however, as had Mr. Mynders before him, was destined to die in office. But before his death Richard C. Jones arrived on campus.

After earning his M.S. from Peabody College in 1932, Mr. Jones became a teacher, superintendent and administrator in the public school system.

During the late 1930's, he was appointed principal of the Campus Training School at West Tennessee State Teachers' College—a post he never held. Before he could take office, the job of dean of the college was vacated and he was named to fill that office.

Mr. Brister soon became ill and Mr. Jones stepped in as acting president. Mr. Brister died in 1939 and Mr. Jones, who had compiled an impressive record as dean and acting president, was named to the presidency. He held the post until 1943, then resigned to work for the Texas Prison System.

It was during Mr. Jones' tenure that the school's name was changed to Memphis State College.

Mr. Jones was succeeded by Memphis State's first true scholar, Dr. Jennings B. Sanders, who contributed greatly to historical literature of the Colonial Period.

Dr. Sanders earned his bachelor's degree from Franklin College in 1923 and his Ph.D. five years later at the University of Chicago. Before taking the Memphis State helm, Dr. Sanders was professor and chairman of the University of Tennessee history department from 1935-42.

He served as Memphis State's president from 1943 until his resignation in 1946 to devote full time to scholarly writing.

Next to occupy the president's office was J. Millard 'Jack' Smith. Mr. Smith, who had spend 15 years as a teacher and principal in the public school system, was the first Memphis State alumnus to lead the school. Mr. Smith earned his B.S. from Memphis State in 1929 and went on to Peabody College for his M.A. in 1930.

Before assuming the presidency, Mr. Smith served three years as director of the Training School and four years as dean of Memphis State College.

Under Mr. Smith, Memphis State donned the robes of a university and paved the way for the fast-paced growth that was to come during the next decade.

Dr. Cecil C. Humphreys, who earned his M.S. from the University of Tennessee in 1938 and his Ph.D. from New York University in 1957, became president in 1960 and saw student enrollment climb above the 20,000 mark as the World War II baby boom hit the nation's campuses.

Beset by growing pains, MSU's campus was enlarged and new buildings appeared everywhere as students and dollars poured into the campus.

Under Dr. Humphreys' guidance, the campus grew from its original 80 acres to 147, plus 146 more acres acquired when the Kennedy Veterans Hospital was closed. An additional 187 acres is controlled by the department of anthropology which operates Chucalissa Indian Village. The University also operates 640 acres of a farm donated by the late newspaper editor Edward J. Meeman.

Dr. Humphreys left MSU in 1972 to become first chancellor of the State University and Community College System of Tennessee.

Dr. Billy M. Jones, eighth president of Memphis State, received his bachelor of arts degree from Vanderbilt in 1950, his M.A. degree in 1952 from George Peabody College and the Ph.D. degree in history and political science from Texas Tech University in 1963.

Dr. Jones is credited with leading Memphis State through a period of leveling traditional enrollment into an era of refinement of academic programs and community outreach.

After nearly seven years of service to MSU, Dr. Jones resigned effective March 1, 1980, to accept an endowed teaching and research position at Wichita State University.

THE HISTORICAL HERITAGE

From the opening of its doors in 1912 as a normal school for training teachers to its present status as a multipurpose university, Memphis State has been inevitably thrust forward by the growth of Memphis and the Mid-South. A town oriented to a rural economy and culture in 1900 grew into a large urban and commercial center by mid-century, and the city's public institution of higher learning experienced comparable growth.

Memphis State's development has been typical of other major universities coming into prominence since World War II in an emerging modern South. As a public institution in a relatively poor state, Memphis State's destiny has been closely related to the attitudes of governors, legislators, newspaper editors, and members of governing boards. Their perception of public educational needs determined a college's role. The realities of state politics meant that a notion of "democracy" would define admission policies, academic programs, and the financing of a "peoples" college. Unfortunately for Memphis State, until a decade and a half ago these leaders assumed that Tennessee could afford only one state university.

Nevertheless, from normal school for a few hundred students (1912-1925), to teachers' college with a better staff and an enrollment of up to a thousand (1925-1941), to state college with an expanded curriculum in liberal arts, business, and graduate education for three to four thousand students (1941-1957), the institution finally became a full university in 1957.

As the city of Memphis prospered and exceeded a half million population, the demand for a completely developed, comprehensive university could not be denied. Other state universities were too distant to help and local private colleges were limited in curricular offerings and the number of students they could accommodate. At last, legislators and board members changed their minds about Memphis State's role. This change resulted only partially from impersonal forces reflected in census returns; it always required forceful leadership from concerned local citizens, several presidents, alumni and faculty members.

The metropolitan requirements for more highly trained university graduates have of necessity caused Memphis State to expand all of its offerings in arts and sciences, business administration, education, graduate work (including the doctorate in a dozen disciplines), law, engineering, continuing education for all ages of people, and nursing, in addition to several special non-degree programs.

Recently, all aspects of the University's operation have developed rapidly. From 1960 to the present, for example, the number of full-time faculty members increased from 200 to 734; library holdings from 80,000 to 867,000 bound volumes; the operating budget from $2,373,000 to $51,662,887; campus acreage from 85 to 1,198 acres; and campus value (land, buildings, equipment) from $17,000,000 to $144,320,361.

Now, as the enrollment settles down in the 20,000 range, the University strives to build its academic, research, and public service programs to match its recent physical expansion. Only sixty-five years ago Memphis State was a little normal school; today it is a regionally recognized university with a most promising future.

ACADEMIC DRESS

The following information is to help our visitors identify the costumes seen in the commencement procession.

Academic dress originated at universities in the Middle Ages when a warm gown and hood were necessary in unheated buildings. For centuries these gowns distinguished students from their fellow citizens; sometimes this distinction in dress symbolized unfortunate controversies between "town and gown". The European habit of using academic robes came to this country in the eighteenth century with the founding of what is now Columbia University. In 1895 American universities and colleges standardized their styles of academic costumes, and this system, with occasional modifications, is still in force. Today the various colors, trimmings, and patterns of gown, hood, and cap are all traditional and symbolize both the degree and field of learning.

GOWNS: American academic gowns are usually of black material, and their pattern varies with the degree held. The bachelor gowns are relatively simple in design with a closed front and long, pointed, open sleeves. Master's gowns have an open front with long, colored sleeves, the arms extending through a slit at the elbow, giving the appearance of short sleeves. Doctoral gowns are the most elaborate with velvet panels down the open front and three velvet bars on the bell-shaped sleeves.

HOODS: The hoods, differing in length for the three degrees (bachelor's, master's, and doctor's), are lined with the colors of the institution that granted the degree. Hoods are also trimmed with the color that heralds the major field of learning.

CAPS: A square mortarboard is the approval headgear. The tassel, fastened to the middle point of the top of the cap, is black or the color appropriate to the subject; it may be gold if the holder has a doctor's degree. Memphis State University has adopted the practice of having candidates for the bachelor degree to wear the tassels on the right front side before degrees are conferred and to shift them to the left at the moment when the degrees are awarded to them.

Following is a list of the hood and tassel colors that represent several categories of learning.

Arts, Letters, Humanities	White
Audiology & Speech Pathology	Dark Blue
City & Regional Planning	Scarlet Red
Commerce, Accountancy, Business	Sapphire Blue
Communication Arts	Silver Gray
Economics	Copper
Education	Light Blue
Engineering	Orange
Fine Arts	Brown
Home Economics	Maroon
Journalism	Crimson
Law	Purple
Music	Pink
Nursing	Apricot
Physical Education	Sage Green
Public Administration	Peacock Blue
Science	Golden Yellow
Social Work	Citron

All hoods are edged with the above colors. These same colors may be used for the facing and sleeve bars of doctoral gowns and tassels on bachelors' and masters' caps.

The lining of the hood indicates the university granting the degree—for Memphis State University, blue and gray. Among other institutional colors represented at this commencement are those for Arkansas, red and white; Chicago, maroon; Columbia, light blue and white chevron; Duke, royal blue with white chevron; Emory, navy blue with gold chevron; Harvard, crimson; Illinois, navy blue with two orange chevrons; University of Iowa, old gold; Kansas, navy blue with cardinal chevron; Northwestern, purple with gold chevrons; Ohio State, scarlet with silver gray chevron; Rice, silver above blue; Texas, white above orange; Vanderbilt, black and gold; Wisconsin, bright red; Yale, royal blue.

UNDERGRADUATE

CANDIDATES FOR DEGREES

GRADUATION WITH DISTINCTION

Based on a grading system of "A" as 4.0, three designations of graduation honors are recognized.*

Summa Cum Laude ..... With Highest Distinction (Gold Honor Cord)

Magna Cum Laude ..... With High Distinction (Red Honor Cord)

Cum Laude ..... With Distinction (White Honor Cord)

GRADUATION WITH HONORS

With the approval of the University Honors Council, Memphis State University offers several departmental honors programs. These programs involve a combination of special honors course work, independent study, and usually an honors thesis or project. Students who successfully complete a departmental honors program are awarded their degrees with honors in their area of concentration (e.g., With Honors in English).

WITH HIGH SCHOLARSHIP

Students who successfully complete the two-year program with a grade point of 3.25 or better are awarded the associate degree with high scholarship.

*Note: Because of time limitations imposed in preparing this program for commencement, listing for graduation with distinction was based on a minimum of forty-five (45) graded semester hours and the grade point average as of the term prior to the final semester. Final determination of graduation with distinction will be based on a minimum of fifty (50) graded semester hours, including the final semester, and on the cumulative grade point average as of graduation.

THE DEPARTMENT OF NURSING

Candidates presented by Dr. Bonnie W. Duldt, Chairman

The Department of Nursing offers the Associate of Science degree in Nursing and the Bachelor of Science degree in Nursing. The primary purpose of the A.D. Nursing program is to provide educational experiences designed to prepare graduates who have the ability to plan and implement direct care to patients with common, recurring nursing problems. Each nursing course includes clinical experiences in one of the many local and private health facilities. Graduates from the program are eligible for licensure as a Registered Nurse in the State of Tennessee. The program is accredited by the National League for Nursing and approved by the Tennessee Board of Nursing.

The primary purpose of the B.S. Nursing program, initiated in the Fall of 1978, is to prepare graduates to provide within the health care system a comprehensive service of assessing, promoting, and maintaining health of individuals and groups. They are prepared to practice in a variety of settings; hospital, home, and community. Comprehensive health care is emphasized. This program has initial approval by the Tennessee Board of Nursing. Accreditation by the National League for Nursing is being sought.

THE FOGELMAN COLLEGE OF BUSINESS AND ECONOMICS

Candidates presented by Dean M.E. Bond, Ph.D.

The Fogelman College of Business and Economics offers only one undergraduate degree, the Bachelor of Business Administration degree. The goal of the undergraduate program of the Fogelman College of Business and Economics is to provide the basic education needed to prepare a man or woman to enter the field of business and to move rapidly from an entry level position to a managerial level of work.

We believe the curriculum which best accomplishes this goal consists of four components. First, a broad foundation of course work is provided in the liberal arts and sciences. At least 40% of the work taken by each student in the Fogelman College of Business and Economics is in the humanities, the social sciences, the naturruural and physical sciences, communications, and mathematics.

Second, the curriculum includes a significant amount of study of the economic and legal environment of business and introduces each of the major functional fields of business—accounting, management, and marketing.

Third, the curriculum provides for a choice of a major by the student. He is permitted to select his major from accounting, economics, finance, insurance, real estate, business management, marketing, international business, or office administration. Within most majors there is opportunity for the student to select a more specialized area of concentration, such as personnel management, advertising, economic theory, secretarial science, and so on.

Fourth, the Bachelor of Business Administration curriculum offers the opportunity for the selection of free electives. Through these electives, the student may select courses particularly suited to his or her own interests, thus providing an opportunity for the student to pursue greater breadth or greater depth of study of business or other fields.

THE COLLEGE OF COMMUNICATION AND FINE ARTS

Candidates presented by Dean Richard Robert Ranta, Ph.D.

The College of Communication and Fine Arts is ultimately focused upon visual and audible symbols, whose rational and emotional values it is the mission of the College to create and explore. In the belief that perception is largely shaped by experience, the College of Communication and Fine Arts offers a range of symbolically rendered experiences, both individual and collective, in the hope of broadening and sensitizing the perceptions of its students.

Through its various professional courses of study, it prepares students to work toward careers in the fine or applied arts, communication, or the performing arts, whether as practicioners, teachers, artists, or consultants. The College offers four degrees by which to accomplish its purposes:

BACHELOR OF ARTS

Candidates for the oldest of the traditional baccalaureate degrees are students who have majored in art history; journalism with concentrations in either advertising, broadcast journalism, news editorial, magazine, press photography, or public relations; applied music; music history and literature; or speech and drama with concentrations in general speech, radio, television, film, rhetoric and communication arts, or theatre.

THE COLLEGE OF EDUCATION

Candidates presented by Dean Robert L. Saunders, Ed.D.

The College of Education pursues six stated goals to help the University achieve its basic purpose, the advancement of learning. One of the six goals is highlighted at each commencement. This goal is "to provide preparation programs which produce teachers and certain other professional personnel sufficient in quantity and competence to help meet the needs of the state, region, and nation."

The several undergraduate preparation programs provided by the College of Education lead to three baccalaureate, professional degrees: the Bachelor of Science in Education, the Bachelor of Music Education, and the Bachelor of Science in Home Economics.

Each of the degree programs consists of three basic components. General Education courses comprise approximately 45% of each degree program. Professional courses make up from 25% to 40% of the total, depending upon the particular programs followed. The remaining portion is used to develop one or more specializations.

In addition to their prescribed courses, graduates of the various degree programs are required to meet criteria related to their personal and professional fitness for their chosen careers. Field-based laboratory experiences are included in all preparation programs in the College.

BACHELOR OF SCIENCE IN EDUCATION

Candidates for this professional degree have studied in programs covering six broad fields: curriculum and instruction, distributive education, health and physical education, home economics education, library service, and special education and rehabilitation. These several teacher education preparation programs cover eleven majors which, in turn, are subdivided into some forty academic teaching endorsements. The College of Education also offers through this degree majors in the non-teaching fields of recreation and park administration and rehabilitation education.

THE UNIVERSITY COLLEGE

Candidates presented by Dean H. Ramsey Fowler, Ph.D.

The mission of University College is to serve the educational needs of students whose career and personal goals require a non-traditional degree program. Mature, motivated students working closely with a committee of faculty advisors may participate in the design of their own individual degree program of study. To assume responsibility for designing an individualized concentration requires an unusual degree of independence, certainty of direction and maturity. It is not surprising therefore that the students of University College range in age from 17 to 65 with an average of 32 years. The degrees awarded by the College are the Bachelor of Liberal Studies and the Bachelor of Professional Studies.

For the faculty of Memphis State, University College offers an arena to explore new interdisciplinary forms of education at all levels of the curriculum. Indeed, the faculty of University College is drawn from the other five undergraduate colleges of Memphis State. Over 140 members of the Memphis State faculty from 40 departments now serve University College as advisors or instructors.

With its emphasis on interdisciplinary education which bridges the departments, University College offers to students and faculty alike an educational experience which uses new means to achieve old goals—the close relationship of life and study, the interrelatedness of human knowledge, and the application of that knowledge to the important issues of our time.

THE DEPARTMENT OF AEROSPACE STUDIES
AFROTC DETACHMENTS NR 785
CANDIDATES FOR AIR FORCE COMMISSION

The Department of Aerospace Studies offers a curriculum to prepare men and women for commissioned service in the United States Air Force. The courses and Leadership Laboratory are designed to complement the student's work in his major field of study. A minor in Aerospace Studies is offered to those who complete 18 semester hours of Air Force ROTC courses.

The General Military Course, open to all University students, comprises four semesters of survey-level instruction on the development and organization of the Air Force. A month of summer training at an active Air Force base leads to membership in the Professional Officer Course for selected cadets and applicants from the University at large. During their final two years of graduate or undergraduate schooling, Air Force ROTC cadets study comprehensive courses in Leadership and Management, American Defense Policy and Flight Theory. Candidates for pilot training complete a course of 25 hours of flight instruction in light aircraft. The cadets organize and conduct a broad range of extracurricular activities to develop leadership skills and managerial experience to meet the course objectives of Leadership Laboratory.

Upon graduation and completion of the Air Force ROTC program, the cadets are commissioned as Second Lieutenants and assume the responsibilities of managing our nation's Aerospace defense resources.

NATIONAL ANTHEM

Oh, say can you see by the dawn's early light
What so proudly we hail'd at the twilight's last gleaming,
Whose broad stripes and bright stars through the perilous fight
O'er the ramparts we watch'd were so gallantly streaming?
And the rockets' red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there.
Oh, say does that star-spangled banner yet wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

ALMA MATER

Stand firm, O Alma Mater,
Through all the years to come;
In days of youth and beauty
Thy halls have been our home.
In time of preparation
Great lessons didst thou teach
Til now, O Alma Mater,
The stars we'll strive to reach.

Lead on, O Alma Mater,
Thy sons to higher ways,
Give light and truth unto them
For all their coming days.
To thee we'll give all honor,
Our hopes abide in Thee,
For thou, O Alma Mater,
Hast made us ever free.
